

STOP
SEXUAL ASSAULT

THINKING AHEAD.

WHAT SHOULD SOMEONE DO IF THEY'VE BEEN SEXUALLY ASSAULTED?

Immediately after an assault, an individual should:

- Get away from the attacker and to a safe place as quickly as possible. Then, call 911 or the police.
- Call a friend or family member s/he trusts. S/he can also call a crisis center or hotline to speak with a counselor. Feelings of shame, guilt, fear, and shock are normal; so it is important to get counseling from a trusted professional.
- Do not wash, comb, or clean any part of his/her body. S/he should not change clothes if possible, so the hospital staff can collect evidence. S/he should not touch or change anything at the scene of the assault.
- Go to his/her nearest hospital emergency room as soon as possible. S/he needs to be examined, treated for injuries, and screened for possible sexually transmitted infections (STIs) or pregnancy. The medical professional will collect evidence using a rape kit for fibers, hair, saliva, semen, or clothing the attacker may have left behind.

While at the hospital, s/he should:

- Decide if s/he wants to file a police report. If so, the hospital staff can call the police from the emergency room.
- Ask the hospital staff to connect him/her with a local rape crisis center. The center staff can help the individual make choices about reporting the attack and getting help through counseling and support groups.

HOW CAN I HELP SOMEONE WHO'S BEEN SEXUALLY ASSAULTED?

You can help someone who is abused or who has been assaulted by listening and offering comfort. Go with her/him to the police, the hospital, university administrators, or to counseling. Reinforce the message that s/he is not at fault and that it is natural to feel angry and ashamed.
