It’s a fact, college students party. Our goal is to ensure that those parties are safe and appropriately themed. Theme parties are often a fun way to give students an opportunity to express their creativity and even a sense of humor. While most parties are held on private property, it is also important to follow your campus, community, and organization’s policies.

BEFORE YOUR PARTY, ASK YOURSELF…
- Does this event rely on stereotypes of certain groups or encourage offensive dress?
- Does the event/title stereotype a certain gender?
- Is your theme centered on “making fun” of a particular people/culture/campus group? Even if it is not, will people “Go there?”
- Would you be willing to send photos of your event to your parents, your inter/national office, the CAMPUS NEWSPAPER, or YOUR COLLEGE president?

THINGS TO AVOID
- Blackface (or any other colored faceprint meant to portray another ethnicity)
- Men dressing like women/women dressing like men
- Using the word “Ho”, “Whore” or other degrading terms in the title of the event
- Wearing Greek letters that are not your own
- Culturally insensitive themes
- Encouraging costumes with minimal clothing or ABC (anything but clothes) events

DON’T LET YOU PARTIES LOOK LIKE THIS…

These organizations faced a loss of recognition as a result of these parties. By avoiding racially and culturally sensitive words and themes, fraternity and sorority members can prove respect for and acceptance of the communities in which they live.

JUST DON’T BE DUMB!
ALL FUN, NO FOUL: CREATIVE YET FUN AND INOFFENSIVE THEMES

Taken straight from the party planning archives of actual colleges and universities, these are some of the best themes we’ve seen:
